WAR VETERAN PASSES AWAY

Edwin B. Prime Served With Bravery in Co. G, 10th N.
H. Volunteers.

Edwin B. Prime, one of Portsmouth's best known citizens, died on Sunday after a brief illness of pneumonia. He was born in Exeter, Nov. 19, 1845, the son of William B. and Sarah J. Prime. When a small boy his parents moved to this city and his education was gained in the schools of this city. In September, 1862, when only a mere lad, he enlisted in Co. G, 10th New Hampshire Volunteers, Captain George W. Towle, and served with distinction. He participated in all of the engagements of the company and at the battle of Fair Oaks on Oct. 27, 1864, he was wounded in the lower jaw by a minnie ball, which so shattered the bone that he was never able to partake of any solid food. The bullet remained in his jaw for several years before being extracted. After his return home he was for many years employed as a messenger on the navy yard. In politics he was a staunch Republican and for a number of years held the office of city treasurer and later was a deputy sheriff. He also served on the Board of Registrars of Voters for several years and held the position of bail commissioner.

He was a past noble grand of Osgood Lodge, No. 43, I. O. O. F., a member of St. Andrews Lodge, A. P. and A. M., Alpha Council, Royal Arcanum. He is survived by a wife, one son and a daughter, also two brothers, Charles H. of this city, William E. of Palmer, Mass., and four sisters, Mrs. Walter S. Gray of Kittery, Mrs. H. B. Wilder, Mrs. A. D. Ordway of Battle Creek, Mich., Mrs. W. D. Stimpson of Philadelphia.

Local Pythian Organizations Attend Services at Christ Church and Decorate Graves of Deceased Members

On Sunday the members of Danian Lodge, No. 9, Knights of Pythias, observed Pythian Memorial Sunday. In the morning the members of the lodge, accompanied by Crystal Temple, Pythian Sisters, and having Lucullus Company, U. R. K. P., Captain John S. Carl, as escort, marched to Christ church. After the Sisters and the subordinate lodge had been seated in the body of the church the members of Lucullus Company formed the arch of steel in the main aisle through which the rector, his attendants and the vested choir passed on their march to the chancel. A special musical program was rendered by the vested choir under the direction of Organist W. W. McIntire.

Rev. Charles L. V. Brine gave a very able discourse and spoke in part as follows:

My first word this morning must be a word of hearty greeting to you, my friends. You have come here to worship with us and to you our doors are open wide; you are in the midst of friends and are most heartily welcome. You have come here to worship at our altar and may the grace and blessing of God come upon you. You have come also to remember your brethren de-

CHILDREN'S DAY OBSERVANCE

Sunday School of Rye Christian Church Observes Event With Concert.

The annual Children's Day Concert was given by the Sunday school of the Christian church on Sunday evening at 7 o'clock.

The audience was large and the children, especially the little tots, all deserved much credit.

The charming sacred juvenile cantata entitled "The Morning of Life" was presented in a fine manner, which reflects much credit to the participants and also to Mrs. J. B. Fenwick and Miss Caroline Philbrick, who faithfully drilled the children.

The following program was presented:

- Part I.
- March.
 - Introduction—Instrumental.
 - Chorus—Sing With Hearts and Voices.
 - Prayer—Rev. Mr. Dinkell.
 - Solo—Beautiful Summer is Here.
 - Mildred Tucker.
 - Chorus—Blessed, Holy Bible.
 - Chorus—Sing and Be Glad.
 - Song—We are Little Fishers.
 - Chorus—We Praise Thee.
 - Offertory.
- Part II.
- Chorus—With Banners Bright.
 - Song—Though So Little.
 - Solo—We'll Learn to Say No.
 - Phyllis Chick.
 - Duet—Angels Watch.
 - "Princes' Grace, Mildred Tucker.
 - Song—The Happy Hours.
 - Solo—Branches of Palms.
 - Miss Edna Sanborn.
 - Chorus—Sunbeams of Gladness.
 - Disputation of Potted Plants.
 - Benediction.
 - Speech Characters.
 - Eight Loving Hearts.

KILLED HER HUSBAND WHILE INSANE

YACHTS RESUME TRIALS TUESDAY

Defiance, Vanitie and Resolute Will Continue Preliminary Races This Week.

New York, June 21.—Having undergone various changes the three cup class yachts, Defiance, Resolute and Vanitie, will resume their racing up contents this week in upper Long Island Sound.

The first race in the long series arranged for the yachts will be held off Greenwich Tuesday under the auspices of the Indian Harbor Yacht club of that port. The New York Yacht club will continue the sport with a race for the title in connection with the annual regatta of that club on the 26th. Friday and Saturday the Seawanhawck Corinthian Yacht club will hold races for the boats off Oyster Bay.

The Long Island series will close on the following week, after which the three yachts will go to Newport for six weeks of racing in which event will count in the selection of a boat for the defense of the America's cup.

The Defiance will appear this week as a typical knockabout, having been of the knockabout type, with all sails in-board and a short pole compass. It is expected that the Defiance will receive time from both the Vanitie and Resolute, while her managers believe that the change from a large single jib and tall rig under which she was first raced, will not cut down her speed to any great extent.

The Resolute has been altered to a double headsail sloop, the same rig which she tried during the first two weeks under sail. It is said by those on board that there is very little difference in the speed of the yacht under dunder and single rigs.

When the Vanitie comes to Indian Harbor Tuesday, Harry L. Hall, a son of Bank Hall, who sailed three cup defenders to victory, will be at the wheel, having displaced William S. Dennis. He was an assistant to Captain Dennis during the first races. Captain Hall has had considerable experience in yacht racing in all kinds of boats, notably the 67-footers Aurora and Windward. He will have the assistance of B. S. Willis, another experienced professional.

Several of the headsails of the Vanitie have been re-cut, otherwise there have been few alterations in the Cochran yacht.

Henry M. Folsom of Somerville Shot at Newmarket While Riding to Summer Home--Wife Admits Crime and Is Now at Local Jail--A Com- mission to Make Examination of Her Sanity--Woman Had Been In- sane Before.

Henry M. Folsom, son of Hon. Charles Folsom of Newmarket, and a prominent lawyer in Somerville, Mass., was shot and killed by his wife, Mary, on Saturday afternoon on the road between Exeter and Newfields.

It was the act of an insane woman, and Mrs. Folsom, who is now confined at the local jail, will, as soon as the necessary legal steps are taken, be committed to the New Hampshire State Asylum for the Insane.

Mrs. Folsom, who was Mary Hardy, daughter of Captain William Hardy of Dover, about five years ago married Folsom, and she was placed in the Melrose Asylum at Waverly, Mass., and later moved to the New Hampshire asylum, from where she was discharged an cured about two years ago, and since then she has had every care and nursing that an affectionate husband could provide.

The Folsoms live during the winter months in Somerville, where he was a member of the law firm of Powers, Folsom and Powers, and chairman of the school board. They have a summer place at Newmarket, where his wife has been for the past month or more.

A short time ago Mrs. Folsom began to show signs of old trouble, and she frightened a neighbor by cutting one day, and finding the woman lying down, grasped her by the neck and remarking how easy she could kill her if she wished. Her condition was such that word was sent to Mr. Folsom to come home, and it was intended to again commit Mrs. Folsom to an asylum.

His brother Arthur who had just returned from Chicago on his vacation was to have come down on the same train, but he had some business that kept him and he phoned Henry not to wait, he would come on the 4.40 train out of Boston.

Mrs. Folsom in a two-seated carriage, drove from their summer place to Exeter to meet her husband, and while waiting for the train she purchased a 32 calibre revolver and the necessary ammunition. At the depot she greeted her husband affectionately and told him that she would ride in the rear seat and to honor her he took the reins. They had gone about two miles out of Exeter, when without warning, she pulled the revolver from her bag and shot him through the back of the head, firing five shots.

The first information of the tragedy was received by an automobile party composed of Charles E. Mitchell, J. B. Mitchell and E. A. Delano all of Exeter, and Ward Hutchinson of Wells Depot, Me. They came upon the woman standing over the body in the middle of the road. J. B. Mitchell approached and asked her why she had shot her husband.

"Because I was jealous," was the reply.

The motorists hastened to Exeter where Chief of Police Davis was notified. He hurried to the scene and found her in the same position as they had found her.

"Why did you do it?" he asked.

"Because I did not want him to marry another woman," was the reply.

"Where is the revolver that you did it with?" was asked and she said she had thrown it over the fence. It was found to be of 32 caliber.

Five bullet holes were found in Folsom's head, one in the back of the neck, two near the front and two in the back of the latter going entirely through the neck.

Mrs. Folsom, after being locked up in the police station, refused to talk, simply saying that she had no case, and repeated that she would not be understood if she told her reasons.

County Solicitor Ernest L. Gault, Sheriff Cyron Spiny and Deputy Sheriff Wilbur Shaw of this city were called and arrangements were made for arraignment.

Mrs. Folsom in a calm manner answered to the charge of premeditated murder, and Judge Mayer she answered:

"Guilty."

Held on Murder Charge.

County Solicitor Gault thought that she should be represented by counsel and Stewart E. Rowe, a local attorney, was appointed by the court. He immediately entered a plea of not guilty. She was held for the October term of the superior court to answer to the charge of murder in the first degree. She was taken to the Portsmouth jail.

The Folsoms are prominent in this section, being related to Mrs. Grover Cleveland. The murdered man was a prominent member and an office holder of the Folsom Family Association which meets at Exeter annually.

Constitution Circle, Companions of the Forest, Holds Appropriate Exercises.

The members of Constitution Circle, No. 284, Companions of the Forest, assembled at U. V. U. hall on Sunday afternoon at 3.30 o'clock to pay tribute to their dead. There was a large attendance of members and the impressive ritualistic memorial services of the order was performed by the officers of the Circle. Miss Katherine O'Leary sang "We Wipes a Tear from Every Eye," and Mrs. Augustus Trueman rendered "Face to Face."

The roll call of deceased members showed that the Circle had lost 20 by death since its institution.

Following the ceremonies at the hall the members repaired to St. Mary's and Calvary cemeteries and placed wreaths on the graves of departed members.

The committee in charge consisted of Miss Anna Lynch, Mrs. Margaret Kelley, Mrs. Eleanor Coffee, Mrs. Alice Matison, Mrs. Elizabeth L. Perry.

Sacredness of the Ballot.

In New York City a considerable number of election officials have pleaded guilty to charges of misdemeanor in connection with the recent special election on the question of constitutional amendment, and have been sentenced. They were charged with permitting hundreds of men to vote on forged credentials, and the fact that they pleaded guilty leaves no question as to the soundness of the charge.

This was in the great city of New York and many will pass the matter over as a mere instance of political corruption of the metropolis, but let it be remembered that political corruption is not confined to that city, large as it is and wicked as it is supposed to be. This form of corruption is to be found in all parts of the country, in the small places as well as the large, and it is the most dangerous element in our public life. The buying and selling of votes and the bringing to bear of improper influences work great evils in the political life of the country, and it is the part of the courts and all good citizens to stand shoulder to shoulder against those things which tend to tear down the splendid governmental system that has been built up through long years of patient study and endeavor.

It is regrettable that so many have such slight regard for the sacredness of the ballot. The ballot is the bedrock and the fortress of free government, under which all men shall enjoy equal rights and privileges, and so far as it is tampered with in any manner, just so far are honest men deprived of the rights to which they are entitled under the American form of government.

No pains should be spared to prevent tampering with the ballot and to detect those guilty of such attempts, and the penalties for infringement of this, the most sacred of all the rights of citizenship, should be sufficiently severe to effectually discourage the practice.

No primary system and no system of government can safeguard the rights of the people when the ballot cannot be relied upon to correctly indicate the wishes of the people. If therefore behooves every honest man and every upright official to stand like a solid phalanx against every encroachment upon the sacredness of the ballot, in which alone lies the perpetuity of the best government on the face of the earth.

At least some towns in West Virginia have no use for "General" Kelley's army of the unemployed which is marching from California to Washington. It was recently ordered out of one town and forbidden entrance to another, although the officers pleaded that it was out of money and rations. No sympathy should be wasted on men who march from the west to the east at this time of the year under the battle cry of unemployment.

The truth of the old saying, "Starvation brings people to terms," is exemplified in the surrender of Premier Asquith to the hunger strikers. But the method has usually been employed by starving the other fellow instead of one's self. However, this is an age of change and experimentation, and possibly the militants have brought to light an important and far-reaching discovery.

The Bald Head Club of America is to hold its annual banquet at Winsted, Conn., in October, and a heartless New York paper intimates that it will also be a joyful occasion for the flies. The club has a large membership and its field for growth is promising, as there is a vast number of eligibles who have not yet enrolled.

Nantucket, with the aid of the Massachusetts legislature, is able to exclude automobiles from the island and proceeds to do so. There is consequently one haven of refuge for those who object to the sight, sound and smell of the machines, as some people do in spite of the general popularity of the motor vehicle.

"Uncle Joe" Cannon showed a party of young women in Washington the other day that at 78 he is still able to dance most of the ancient and modern steps with ease. But this is not so strange in view of his extended experience as the dancing master of Congress.

Secretary McAdoo wants more power to be exercised in running down income tax dodgers. And if he needs it he ought to have it. The worst tax dodgers in the country are those who are best able to pay.

The George Junior republic is in financial straits and liable to pass out of existence, according to reports. And perhaps that would be just as well for the American republic.

First Successful Test of Electric Towing Engines In the Gatun Locks

The first ocean steamship, carrying a cargo, to go through the great Gatun locks of the Panama canal in order to test the electric towing engines was the Panama railroad liner Alliance. The ship, leaving Cristobal on Atlantic entrance, was successfully raised through the eighty-five foot elevation of the locks to Gatun lake and then lowered back again through the various levels. Four electric machines towed her through the chambers. The test was a complete success. After this experience the ship sailed with her cargo for New York. The vessel did not go through the canal.

and memory, do make this our last Will and Testament.

After our just debts and expenses, we do, hereby, dispose of our estate as follows:

First, we do hereby give and bequeath that warm place in our hearts, which has been sacredly guarded for our teachers during the past four years, to the Junior Class, hoping that they may guard it even better than we have done.

We do give and bequeath those helps in current events which have been bestowed upon us by our president to the president of the Sophomore Class, who delights in that same train of thought and in the use of big words.

Our president does hereby reluctantly give and bequeath to Susie Seawards the charge of leading her class of 1915 as carefully as he has endeavored to lead his.

That dear book the Commercial Geography we do give and bequeath to the Junior class, hoping that they may love it as well as we have, but also hoping that they may be better prepared in their lessons in that subject, than we have been.

To the Junior Class we also give and bequeath the articles on the "Bulletin board," which have succeeded this year in causing us so much sorrow.

To the Junior Class and the two lower classes, we do hereby give and bequeath the Literary Digests, in order that they may receive as much enjoyment, help and instruction from these papers as we have.

To a certain Junior who found much difficulty in distinguishing the difference in pronunciation between I-o-t and I-o-u we do give and bequeath that tiny dictionary which may be found in Miss Bowden's desk, hoping that they may receive as much help in regard to pronunciation of words, from that little book as we have.

To Pauline Hobbs, we do give and bequeath Miss Bowden's style books and some of her patterns, for by all appearances Miss Hobbs is very fond of the latest styles.

The "U" that suddenly appeared on a certain Senior girl's report card in history we do give and bequeath to a certain Freshman boy, for from all rumored reports he can succeed in getting only that little but hated letter.

That strong masculine voice which belongs to Miss Bridges we do give and bequeath to Miss Brooks of the Sophomore Class that it may in the future aid her in her recitations.

The musical art of our Vice President we do give and bequeath to May Moody, for we have often heard her say that she "dearly loved any kind of music."

We do give and bequeath those words, "I am not prepared in the last chapter," which we have so often heard one of our boys repeat—in reference to Oliver Goldsmith—to Munson of the Freshman Class.

That jealous feeling which we have seen displayed at times by a certain Senior girl when she feared some one would get ahead of her in typewriting, we do give and bequeath to Miss Collier of the bookkeeping class.

That habit of Miss Mitchell's of not informing the English teacher when she is not prepared and therefore receiving the reminder that said teacher is not a mind reader we do give and bequeath to a certain Sophomore boy who took Latin during his Freshman year.

The craze for dances which was so marked in one of our Senior girls—who lives on Rogers Road—during her Junior year, we do give and bequeath to a certain dark complexioned girl who lives at the farther end of Love Lane.

The love of skating which belongs to our Senior girl of Manson Avenue, we do give and bequeath to one Sophomore boy, who enjoys cutting circles on the ice in solitary state.

To Miss Nedera we do give and bequeath the ability which belongs to our girl classmate of Kittery Point to do much outside work and at the same time be able to maintain a good mark in her studies at school.

Miss Bowden does hereby give, bequeath and devise to a certain Freshman girl the right to hurry with her lessons, in order that she may meet a certain young man of a nearby town at the hour of four.

That giggle which is so marked in our classmate Miss Heeney, we do give, bequeath and devise, to Miss Brackett for we notice she is sometimes taken with that same habit.

The little horse which was the property of Miss Bowden during her Freshman year, but which became frisky one day and took a trip to our principals desk, thereby causing the owner a little embarrassment, we do give, bequeath and devise to Dunbar, for we think he needs a plaything to keep him busy in History class.

The French books which Miss Durgen has used during the past three years, we do give, bequeath and devise to Miss Sprague, for we all know that French is her favorite study.

To the people of Kittery I do here-

CURRENT OPINION

Militants Have Annihilated Every Possibility of Suffrage for Englishwomen.

If I were an anti-suffrage millionaire and desired to do everything in my power to destroy the votes for women movement, I should conduct precisely the campaign carried on by Mrs. Pankhurst and her followers. I should spend every cent of my money burning, ravaging and destroying. Then I should rest content with the conviction that I had devoted my all to the anti-suffrage cause. The militants by their actions have annihilated every possibility of suffrage for Englishwomen for at least a generation.

An Englishman doesn't want to hurt a woman. That's the real reason for the forcible feeding of which there's been so much complaint. We felt that we should be murdering the women if we didn't make them eat. I asked a member of parliament why he didn't export all the disturbers. He said, "If they won't eat, will taking them upon the high seas make any difference?" Only now have some of us reached the conclusion that if food is put before a woman in a cell and she doesn't eat it the case will be suicide and not murder.—By Sir Arthur Conan Doyle, Author.

by give, bequeath and devise that said town of Kittery, in which I have spent two and one-half happy years, during which time I have formed many new friendships and in which town I have had many good times.

That half hour between half past one and two o'clock I do also give, bequeath and devise, to Jenkins. During my Senior year it has been a most important half hour for at that time I have served my time very frequently for talking too loud in typewriting or for writing notes in History Class.

To certain members of the Sophomore Class we do give, bequeath and devise our record for absence for we think there record will soon exceed ours.

To Miss Clark we do give and bequeath Miss Milliken's pretty, quiet manners and hope that she will use them in years to come to good advantage.

Fletcher's seat and his ability to whisper, we do give, bequeath and devise to Lewis of the Freshman Class, in order that he may better know, by whom a certain note which came into his possession was written.

To the instructors of Trap Academy we do hereby give, bequeath and devise our heartfelt thanks and gratitude for the aid, help and pleasant hours they have given us during the past four years.

In testimony whereof we hereunto set our hands, and seal, and declare this to be our last Will and Testament this eighteenth day of June in the year of our Lord One Thousand Nine Hundred and Fourteen.

Signed and sealed by the class of Nineteen Hundred and Fourteen of Trap Academy.

Messrs. James Ward and Reginald Remick, who are attending school at Portland, Me., are in town to pass the vacation with the latter's mother, Mrs. Frank Remick of the Intervene.

A dance will be held at Grange hall Tuesday evening.

CHEMIST AT BAKER TANNERY IS INJURED

Charles B. Rutherford, chemist at the Roland M. Baker Co., met with a painful injury to his right hand this morning by getting it caught in one of the machines.

SENATE STARTS WORK ON TRUST ISSUES TODAY

Newlands Will Take Initiative by Calling for Trade Board Bill.

Washington, June 21.—The senate will begin work on anti-trust legislation tomorrow unless plans of the leaders fail. Senator Newlands will bring the first measure on the program to the floor by calling on the federal trade commission bill recently completed by the interstate commerce committee.

No one in the senate is ready to predict when the program will be finished or in what shape it will go to the White House for the president's signature. Leaders of both parties are convinced, however, that the president intends to see that congress stays here until the anti-trust work is done.

An effort will be made during the week to add in expediting these bills through the senate. Democratic leaders are anxious to have the party act together in conference and determine its line of action before the measures are far on their way.

Many Democrats believe that a conference will serve to give notice to Republicans that it will be useless for them to struggle against the Democratic determination to enact its own form of trust legislation and that this attitude will add in bringing about adjournment late in July or early in August.

While the senate is dealing with the anti-trust bills, the house will be busy with the sundry civil appropriation and deficiency appropriation bills.

Secretary Bryan will make his third appearance tomorrow before the senate foreign relations committee to discuss the remaining two, the pending sundry civil bill and the general deficiency, soon to be reported, before the end of the fiscal year, June 30. In carrying out this policy, there are to be night sessions of the house and the appropriation committee will propose to use tomorrow, ordinarily devoted to District of Columbia legislation. In the senate, however, these bills will be delayed beyond the beginning of the new year and it will be necessary to apply a joint resolution over such period as may be provided by reason of the failure to pass the new supply measures.

As soon as the appropriation bills are out of the way there will be conferences between the President and the majority leaders in congress as to the program.

RAILROAD NOTES

William Lyons of this city is acting telegraph operator at the Dover depot during the absence of Operator James McDonough.

The New Haven Railroad has put into effect a book of rules for the safe operation of trains which is regarded by railroad men as the most comprehensive of any in force on American railroads.

Herbert Colburn, conductor of the Woffboro and Boston express, returned to his run this morning after a month's vacation.

George D. Folger, superintendent of the terminal division of the Boston & Maine railway, is moving into his new office suite on the second floor of the North station.

An Oregon Washington Railway Navigation Company private car, occupied by President James D. Furell and party, passed through Boston over the New England lines on Saturday en route from Portland, Ore., to Shorbrook, Que.

The first Boston passenger train due in this city at 8:05 a. m., was 15 minutes late this morning, owing to some trouble with a Rockport passenger at Beverly.

The Boston & Maine has discontinued the night telegraph office at West Kennelton on the Portland division after 11 p. m.

Some very interesting statistics of the Pennsylvania Railroad are contained in a leaflet which the company has issued for the benefit of the 11,000 Italian employees in its service. Normally, the system employs 220,000 men; the road is 11,740 miles long; has 26,200 miles of track; 7561 locomotives; 6884 passenger cars; 281,500 freight cars and operates 3000 passenger trains daily. The road carries more than 500,000 passengers each day; operates 3000 freight trains a day; handles 1,500,000 tons of freight each day and normally pays in wages $500,000 daily. The road is owned by approximately 100,000 different shareholders.

Goodby Boats

The general order abolishing the wine mess on all vessels of the navy, issued by Secretary Daniels, has been sent by the bureau of navigation to all ships and stations. The order reads as follows:

"Change in Article 827, naval instructions.

"Paragraph 1. On July 1, 1914, Article 827, Naval Instructions, will be annulled, and in its stead the following will be substituted:

"The use or introduction for drinking purposes of alcoholic liquors on board any naval vessel, or within any navy yard or station, is strictly prohibited, and commanding officers will be held directly responsible for the enforcement of this order.

REMEMBERED THEIR DEAD

that he are ordained of God." There is no power to rule but of God. There is no power to serve but of God. To be subject to the higher powers of state we must be subject to the Power on High; to God Almighty who is above all and ruleth ever all.

We are thrilled by the sight of the flag as it is run up to the masthead and catching the breeze unfolds and unfurls and floats out a great inspiration. The flag is a great inspiration and what does it speak to us of as it floats aloft? It speaks to us of the greatness and solidarity of our country and is the symbol of our country's strength. It speaks to us of our country's honor and is the symbol of our national pride. It speaks to us of our country's protection and is the symbol of our national security. Is that all? Do we stop there or does it speak to us of something more than these? Does it speak to us of service? Is it the great symbol of duty? This flag is the most important one for us to consider. Much of our patriotism is nothing more than blind self-interest. Some one has lately said: "There was a time when men fought and bled for their country. Now they fight to bleed it." It is by the performance of self-sacrificing service for the state that the country's solidarity and honor and protection are made possible, are secured.

And then love for man must find its spring in the heart of God. Do not forget the power and efficacy of the personal touch, the personal contact. Personal interest in the sick and needy is worth much more than the money consideration, than the help in material things. I suppose the reason why the word, charity, is sometimes almost despised and scorned is because the heart of love is gone out of it. One great work that the fraternal organizations are doing is to keep clear and strong the personal note, to emphasize the importance of the personal, brotherly interest in the poor and needy, the sick and the distressed in mind and body.

Men are too much disposed to do words of charity and benevolence by proxy, and the heart of the nation is contracting; the streams of love are drying up. The story of Dives and Lazarus is given us in our ritual at this time as a case in point, to enforce the personal element in love. Doubtless Dives was a large-hearted man. Doubtless he gave considerably to charitable schemes and enterprises. But the beggar, Lazarus, at his gate desiring to be fed with the crumbs from his table, he could not be bothered with him.

"Thou shalt love the Lord thy God with all thy heart." This first. "And thy neighbor as thyself." When men forget the love of God then their love for man narrows to the limits of self-interest.

Why is it so difficult to make the East Indian or African understand that your desire to do him good has no ulterior or sinister motive in it? Because he does not know the law of love. Why is it so difficult at this moment to make our Mexican friends understand that the mission of this country is one of unselfish interest and friendliness? Because they do not know the law of love. Why is it so difficult to make the natives of Europe and the Near East here in America realize that our efforts to help are entirely friendly? Because they have not been taught or have forgotten the law of love.

My friends, believe me, it is the love of God that gives to human life its true poise. It is the knowledge of God that gives to human life its true purpose. It is the service of God that gives to human life its true inspiration.

Let us dedicate ourselves anew this morning, in this most solemn hour of prayer, to the service of God, to the service of country, to the service of our fellow men.

In the afternoon a committee visited Proprietors, Harmony Grove and Sagamore cemeteries and placed markers and memorial flags on the graves of deceased brothers. Other committees performed a similar service at Newington and at Riverside cemetery, New Castle. The committee in charge consisted of Chancellor Commander William E. Higgins, Fred Heiser, Harry H. Woods, G. H. Sanderson, George H. Dixon, J. Spencer Lilley.

During the past year Dannon lodge has lost six members by death, William P. Pickett, Charles A. Garland, William C. Laws, Ambrose Card, George F. Randall, Samuel Maddock.

A BIG BUSINESS GROWING BIGGER

Mr. R. G. Sullivan is making between 6,000,000 and 7,000,000 Cigars Every Year, but Smokers Cannot Get Enough of Them—Hence an Addition to the West Central Street Factory.

About 125,000 7-20-4 cigars are being made in Manchester every week, but smokers cannot get enough of them, and Roger G. Sullivan has been compelled to begin an enlargement of his factory. The front portion of his factory, which was last built, is one story higher than the rear part; now the roof will be squared, adding a floor space about 50 by 37 feet. Mr. Sullivan said to an inquiring reporter that he judged that the new space will make room for 50 more men.

VILLA MAY DECLARE ANGELES PRESIDENT

Breaks With the Big Chief and Will Run the Show Himself.

Junco, Mexico, June 21.—Although Carranza has been already proclaimed to all outward appearances the break between Carranza and Villa has been patched up, there is a pronounced independent of Carranza's opinion of the situation here over the situation. Carranza's removal of General Angeles as Secretary of War caused no great surprise, as General Angeles could not with dignity have been maintained in Carranza's Cabinet after signing the decree of the "first chief's" order, which Carranza on Monday in deposing to Carranza's demand that they proceed to Saltillo for conference.

It is held here that Carranza's act will in no way effect General Angeles from a military standpoint, and that he will continue as chief of the constitutionalist artillery.

That Constitutional officials in Washington share the concern of leaders here is indicated by the following message which Roberto Posada, received from Luis Cabrera tonight.

"The only thing to do is to get everybody to define his attitude and to get all the chiefs to recognize their loyalty to Carranza. Everything is going well here."

There is a distinct division between the partisans of Carranza and Villa here and in El Paso. The adherents of the "first chief" are inclined to blame the Carranza family for many of the recent happenings, and they say General Angeles' defection from Carranza is due to Carranza's influence.

On the other hand, the Carranza family is said to be working hard to get Villa to make an open declaration in favor of General Angeles for Provisional President.

It is positively denied that General

Angela has been already proclaimed Provisional President. The report that Villa had done this was sent to Carranza by Arturo Elias, Carranza's representative in El Paso, who acted solely on unconfirmed gossip of Carranza's removal of General Angeles as Secretary of War.

If Villa has shot General Manuel Chao, as reported from Saltillo, no officials here know of it. From a man who saw Chao in Torreon last Tuesday I learn that Chao said that he had made his peace with Villa and that his command had been restored to him. This man says that to all outward appearances Villa and Chao were again on the best of terms.

An incident which occurred today would tend to indicate that Villa has no intention of pushing matters against Carranza any further. M. L. Hutchins, general manager of the Parral and Durango Railway, sent a telegram to Villa, addressing him as chief of the revolution and asking that military protection be given to the property of his company. Villa replied that he would do what he could, adding that the communication should have been addressed to Carranza, as the "first chief" of the constitutionalist party.

There is much speculation here regarding who will succeed General Angeles as Secretary of War. The general opinion is that Carranza has General Luis Caballero slated for the place. On Monday Caballero resigned as military jefe of Tampico and was reported to have left for Saltillo.

TO PLAY OVER MARINE GAME

The Sunset League Commission

have allowed the protest of the Marines in their game with the Connolly-Dillon Coal Co., on June 4th. The protest was made because the official scorer failed to call attention to the Marines' batting out of order before ball had been pitched to the succeeding batsman. In this case one ball had been pitched and on this technical point the protest was allowed and the game will be played over.

BROWN FOR DISTRICT ATTORNEY

Washington, June 21.—The nomination of Mayor F. H. Brown of Somersworth, N. H., to be United States attorney for New Hampshire was prepared Saturday at the White House. He will succeed Charles H. Holt, resigned. Mr. Brown was supported by Senator Hollis.

Mayor Brown has served on the Democratic State Committee for several years. He is a former ball player and at one time was on the Boston Nationals' pitching staff.

HE WENT FOR A SOLDIER

He marched away with a little young score of him. With the first volunteers, Clear-eyed and clean and sound to the core of him, Blushing under the cheers. They were fine, new flags that swung a-flying there. Oh, the pretty girls he glimpsed a-crying there. Telling him with plinks and with coos— Billy, the Soldier Boy.

Not very clear in the kind young heart of him

What the fuss was about, But the flowers and the flags seemed part of him— The music drowned his doubt.

It's a fine, brave sight they were a-crying there.

To the gay-bell time they kept a-drumming there

While the hoisting flies shrieked loudly—

Billy, the Soldier Boy!

Soon he one with the blinding smile of it—

Valley and curse and ground; Then he has done with the knightly poke of it—

It's a rending flesh and bone. There are pale-crazed animals a-shrieking there.

And a warm blood stench that is a-reeking there;

He fights like a rat in a corner— Billy, the Soldier Boy!

There he lies now, like a ghoul's score of him.

Left on the field for dead; The ground all round is smeared with the gore of him—

Even the leaves are red. The Thing that was Billy lies a-dying there.

Whirling and a pelting and a-crying there;

A screaming sun goes down on him. Billy, the Soldier Boy!

Still not quite clear in the poor, wrong heart of him

What the fuss was about. See where he lies—or a ghastly part of him—

While life is oozing out; There are loathsome things he sees a-crawling there;

Eager for the foul feast spread for them—

Billy, the Soldier Boy!

How much longer, O Lord, shall we bear it all?

How many more red years? Story it and glory it and share it all, In seas of blood and tears

They are braggart attitudes we've worn so long;

They are tinsel platitudes we've sworn so long—

Ave who have turned the Devil's Grindstone,

Burne with the hell called War! —Ruth Comfort Mitchell, in Easy Smart Set.

GLASS HOUSES

No Woodwork—Iron Framework and Rustproof

Paul Scheerbarth, the well known German writer, prophesies that the architecture of the future will be of glass and that the world will be inhabited by a happy race under the good influence of light.

"The houses will be of glass," he says, "with all wood eliminated. The furniture will be of wrought iron and the framework of the buildings will be of iron and rustproof, while the walls will be of double glass to insure warmth and of many colors in order to baffle inquisitive persons."

"The buildings will be heated by electricity and the walls decorated in Tiffany marjorie effects. The porch of every home will have three sides of glass and there will be glass garden houses, where one may live in the sunshine by day and the starlight by night."

Her Scheerbarth draws a brilliant work picture of a city with stores, churches, and public buildings of glass, all brilliantly lighted in many colors. Bruno Taut, the architect, built a palace along these lines at the Cologne exposition.

Miss Margaret Barth of Newburyport, Mass., passed Sunday in this city in the guest of friends.

TRAINED LIONS KILL SHOWMAN

Oldest of Six in Cage Tries in Vain to Save Dietrich the Trainer From Being Torn to Pieces

Chicago, June 21.—Emerson D. Dietrich, Brooklyn manager of a theatrical production here presenting a troupe of trained lions, was killed and partly devoured tonight by six lions when he entered the cage in which they were caged.

While the keepers were trying to recover Dietrich's body from the beasts, a lion escaped from an adjoining cage and terrorized residents of the thickly populated district in which the car stood.

The escaped lion finally was driven back to its cage, having harmed no one. A pike pole from the fire department was used to finally withdraw Dietrich's body from the lions, after it had been sprinkled with formaldehyde to drive the animals away.

George McChord, keeper of the lions, was unable to help Dietrich.

"When he went into the den," McChord said, "Teddy, the leader of the attack against Dietrich, began to play with him and he told the beast to get down. Four of the lions were facing him. Finally, Teddy slunk around behind him and in a minute was on his back. Four others leaped for him. A moment later, and I think his neck was broken at once."

"Billy, the oldest of the lions, tried to save him, but the others pushed him away and he quit and watched them without joining in the attack."

The lions are owned by Madame Adèle Castillo, to whom Dietrich was engaged to be married. She said she

"Tea and Coffee

are just as harmful to children as alcohol is to grown-ups," says Dr. Charlotte Abbey, superintendent of the Women's Directory, New York.

The reason why coffee and tea injure anybody, is because these beverages contain the poisonous drug, caffeine, (from 1/4 to 3 grains to the cup), which physicians have long known affects the heart, stomach and liver.

Children especially, with their delicate nerves, are susceptible to the action of caffeine, and should never be allowed to have tea or coffee or any other beverage containing drugs.

Thousands of adults have found that their headaches, nervousness, indigestion and sleeplessness have vanished when a change was made from coffee and tea to

KING MAY NOT SIGN THE HOME RULE BILL

London, June 21.—King George is again pressing Premier Asquith to agree to the total exclusion of Poles from the Home Rule bill until it voluntarily comes in. The Premier declined to make such a concession and the King, lacking in discretion and good temper, has been threatening to refuse to assent to the bill, which would be equivalent to dismissing the Government and causing an immediate general election.

The King at present is under the influence of the "die hards," who have persuaded him that the Irish National Volunteers intend to rebel against the British connection. The King has demanded that Asquith suppress both the Ulster and National volunteers, which is impossible, and could embroil the whole country.

The fact is that between his own apprehensions and the predictions of far-reaching disaster ahead, pumped into him by his "die hard" friends, the King is almost beside himself.

Queen Realizes Consequences

It has been believed that Queen Mary was always the ruling force in the palace, but this is a complete delusion. She is quite powerless to restrain the King, and is actually afraid of him.

She realizes the calamitous consequences to the country and the dynasty if the King allows himself to be led by the Tory "die hards" into an open quarrel with the Liberal party. Things have now reached such a pass in the palace that the Queen and her friends are praying that the King may do nothing to compromise his Constitutional position.

Willing to Accept Amendment.

Now, he intends to ask the Unionists, majority of the House of Lords to pass to a second reading the amendment bill and will embody it in the Tory committee scheme for Ulster. This climb-down is directly connected with the King's violent attitude, as the responsible Tory leaders are afraid of the general consequences of an open

NILE AND MISSISSIPPI WORKS.

Builder of the Assuan Dam to Advise Our Reclamation Service.

The United States reclamation service has retained Sir William Willcocks, the builder of the Assuan dam on the Nile, as its consulting engineer. It is believed that he will be called upon to advise Congress as to the best means of protecting the lower part of the Mississippi valley from floods, and that he will study the whole subject of regulating the flow of the water of that river and its tributaries with a view to improving navigation and developing power sites as well as the vital subject of preventing damage by spring floods. In many respects the problems of the Nile floods and the overflows of the Mississippi are similar. In both cases a vast amount of water goes to waste in the spring when its flow is not regulated. The Nile has proved itself amenable to reclamation by dams and storage basins and this great work will be extended still further now that the success of what has already been done is assured.

Sir William Willcocks may not and probably will not offer any suggestions that have not already been made by our army engineers, but if he is able to induce Congress to make up its mind and furnish the necessary assistance, his service will be of inestimable value to this country. Many other projects throughout the western states are before the reclamation service. Surveys and reports have been made by competent engineers and a consulting engineer, such as he is, will not have to spend much time in going over the grounds because he can take for granted that the data submitted to him are correct. It is encouraging to have a problem that has been studied and discussed for more than 50 years by congressional committees and engineers.—New York Commercial.

ON SALE OF BATTLESHIPS

Washington, June 21.—Sen. Dandels conferred Saturday with Democratic leader Underwood, Republican leader Mann and others in behalf of the proposed sale of the battleships Mississippi and Idaho to a foreign Nation, said to be the Greek Government. The proceeds to be used for construction of a new dreadnought.

Mr. Underwood told the Secretary he favored the proposition because it would cost the Government nothing. Mr. Mann declined to agree to the plan as it stood, but said he had no objection to the sale if the proceeds were put into the general fund of the Treasury.

RESCUED FROM THE ICE-PACK

Story of a Government Boat Now at the Portsmouth Navy Yard

With her steel sides rusted and dented and a number of her plates twisted and bent, due to the terrific pressure of ice received in the pack off the Newfoundland coast, the naval tug Potomac, which was abandoned by her captain and crew of 35 men in the ice fields last February 11, arrived at the Portsmouth navy yard recently. She was in charge of a crew of Nova Scotians, who salvaged the boat after she had been abandoned. The Potomac was at once turned over to the navy authorities and, after being put into drydock and repaired, will be placed in commission. Her commander, Michael J. Wilkinson, is still in the local marine hospital, suffering from exposure of the trip. When his condition permits he will have to appear before a board of inquiry concerning the abandoning of the tug.

The Potomac had been sent from the Norfolk navy yard to Bonnet bay on the Newfoundland coast to go in the relief of three American fishing boats that had been caught in the ice. The fishing boat which had all bulled from Gloucester, had ventured too far north. The Potomac, which is a steel vessel, and is of an unusually strong build for her size, was sent to tow the schooners out of the ice. Hardly any extra provisions were taken on board of the tug and few thought that the job would take but a few days. Instead, the Potomac was caught in a heavy ice field when she was about 15 miles off the land. Attempts were made to back a path out of the ice field to the sea, but as the ice was found to be 35 feet in many places all attempts to free the vessel were of no avail. The water for miles around the tug was completely frozen over.

For one week the crew made efforts to free the vessel and after a half a dozen of them were on the sick list and the provisions running very low, Capt. Wilkinson gave the order to abandon ship. Before leaving Newfoundland the Potomac had come up from Panama and the crew were not prepared with clothes for the northern weather. It took them a day to reach land and in their weakened condition, provided with insufficient clothing, they suffered severely, the temperature being 36 degrees below zero. When land was finally reached communication to the American coast and he found quarters for the crew among the natives of the coast. After resting a couple of weeks from their experiences 2 of the crew, taking Capt. Wilkinson on a sled marched 30 miles into interior before reaching a railroad, which brought them back to this country.

Several members of the crew were left behind on the Newfoundland coast to help in the salvaging of the boat. These men wintered there with the natives and came back on the salvaged boat. They are M. S. Bradward, chief electrician helper, who, before the vessel was abandoned, sent in reports of the boat's plight by wireless; E. Kaufman, W. Dixon and J. M. Carothers, a hospital apprentice.

The hardy natives lives on the tug for 73 days before they finally succeeded in freeing the Potomac from the ice. At the time of the abandoning of the boat there was not an ounce of coal left on board. All the five sailors have wonderful stories to tell of their experiences.

Mr. Dandels' visit to the Capitol was regarded as representing the view of the President.

A Terrible Misfortune.

"They are shifting consuls on the merit system," said Jerome S. McWade, the Duluth collector. "Here's a man in Shanghai at $1500 getting shifted to Barcelona at $3000. Another consul with a Warsaw job at $4000 is shifted on a merit system to Plama at $2000. A few more such shifts, and where will the poor fellows land?"

"Shifting consuls on the merit system—that's a good way to express it," it reminds me of Bilson: "Have you heard of the terrible misfortune that has befallen Bilson?"

"No," I said. "No!"

"Bilson, poor fellow," said Bilson, "has eloped with my wife."—Washington Star.

CAPTURED AUTO LOAD OF BOOZE

Portland, Me., June 21.—Leo Hermann and John Moody, two Portland men are under arrest in Saco and their automobile with its load of 210 gallons of whiskey, is being held by the York county sheriff's department.

The capture of the men and their auto was made Saturday by Deputy Sheriff Frank Brown of Biddeford, who, after chasing the big car in a 30-cylinder machine for some distance, headed off the larger machine and brought it to a standstill by puncturing a tire of one of the forward wheels with pistol shots after the driver and refused to obey the officer's command to stop.

The capture was made at Ruston Lower Corner at the foot of a small hill where Deputy Brown had placed the road with his machine. Brown made the two Portland men put a new tire on their car and then forced them to drive it to Saco where it was turned over to the sheriff's department. It was only Friday that Hermann was captured in Portland while driving into the city with a car full of liquor. He was admitted to jail this morning and must have started at once for New Hampshire after the load of liquor which he was bringing to Portland to night.

Says It Was Not Haggerty

In the last issue of the Army and Navy Register the following item appears:

George Polmett, ordinary seaman, was the first man killed at Vera Cruz.
This was decided by officials of the navy department after the receipt from Admiral Fletcher of the detailed reports giving the hours of the death of each of the victims of the two days' fighting. Polmett died at 12.30 o'clock in the afternoon of April 21.

D. A. Haggerty, a private in the Marine Corps, was killed half an hour later, and many reports contained his name as the first loss to the United States in taking Vera Cruz.

Bureau Wants to Know.

The naval division has been advised by the bureau of construction and repairs to notify that bureau as soon as possible after the arrival of the Duquesne, the amount of work necessary to put the ship in condition for navy service. It is expected the Duquesne will shortly sail from the Great Lakes where she has been used by the Albion naval militia.

"A Diamond in the Rough," two reel Majestic rural drama. The daughter of a wealthy farmer spends most of her time reading cheap novels which tell of impossible young heroes. After two strangers almost succeed in stealing her father's money she comes to the realization of what an honest man's love means.

"Diplomatic Flo," three reel Victor drama with Florence Lawrence as the daughter of the chief of the U. S. Secret Service and the sweetheart of one of the agents, secures evidence in an international scheme to embarrass the government. By a clever ruse she captures a Jap spy and makes her lover out a hero.

"Time," a ballad, Orm Publishing
Co.; and "In the Candle Light," M.
Winmark & Son, publishers; sung by Miss Barron.

Coming Wednesday, "In the Cow Country," two reel Kay-See western

She will then go to Bermuda for two days before going to Tangier sound for target practice and service drill.
On the second cruise she will leave
New Haven, Ct., July 23 with Connecticut naval militia and then go to Newport, R. I. for the Rhode Island militia. On her way to Halifax, N. S., she will stop at Portland, Me., to take on the Maine militia.

To Leave the Ship.

The marine battalion numbering 20, attached to the gunboat Wheeling, will be transferred from that ship on Tuesday and distributed between the prison ships, barracks and naval prison.

EQUAL SUFFRAGE MEETING

Nathalie K. Mitchell, Chairman Press
Com., Portsmouth Equal Suffrage League

The coming of Prof. Charles Zueb-lin, noted speaker, whom many have heard under the auspices of the Graffort club, comes to this city on Saturday, June 27, to speak on the subject of Equal Suffrage, at the invitation of the local suffrage league. The address takes place at Association Hall, at 8 p. m. There is no admission fee but a collection will be taken for the cause.

Prof. Zueblin was educated in the public schools of Philadelphia and the University of Pennsylvania, and after graduating at the Northwestern University in 1887 (Ph. D.), he took a post graduate course at Yale University (D. D. 1889) and at the University of Leipzig, Germany (1889-91).

He founded the Northwestern University Settlement in Chicago, in 1891, which is doing splendid work among the immense foreign population on the northwest side. In 1892 he founded the Chicago Society for University Extension. Although this society is no longer in existence, it was the precursor of the magnificent university extension work which was carried on from Chicago, under the auspices of the University of Chicago, from 1893 to 1912. When the University of Chicago was started in 1892, he was made instructor in sociology; by 1902 he had been advanced to a professorship, a position he held until his resignation.

During the sixteen years he was at the University his main work was in the larger field of public life. A portion of each year was devoted to lecturing for the Extension department of the University. His expert knowledge of American cities is largely the result of these lecture journeys, which, involving as they did more than 250, 000 miles of travel in the sixteen years, furnished an unusual opportunity for an exhaustive study of the civic and municipal problems of cities, large and small, in all sections of the United States and abroad.

During the past nineteen years few men have contributed more to the civic awakening of our country than has Mr. Zueblin through his lectures and writings. He is frank and outspoken in his criticisms, economic and social abuses, and scores of towns owe to him their impetus toward higher civic life, and thousands of individuals have received from him a lasting inspiration to clearer thinking and more useful endeavor.

Mr. Zueblin is now an independent lecturer on democracy in literature and life, devoting a good portion of each season to the discussion of the civic and municipal problems in response to the practical needs of communities, being the pioneer in the promotion of Civic Revivals.

In 1902 Mr. Zueblin's first book was published, "American Municipal Progress," and in 1905 his "Decade of Civic Development," was issued by the University of Chicago Press. In the latter, he sketches with a few bold strokes what he calls the "entire history" of the American people since the Civil War; the industrial expansion, vast but without order; the gran-dient change of ideals from the theological and individualistic in the seventies to the ethical and social at the end of the nineteenth century. "We are working out," says the author, "a new application of the old French motto, in that we demand liberty for the worker, equality for the citizen, fraternity for the man." "The Civic Renaissance," as he calls it, is shown to be a great national movement, comparable to the Civil War and the reconstruction period. In 1908 was published his "Religion of a Democrat," which is a frank discussion of the demands made upon religion by the spirit of true democracy. In 1910 appeared "Democracy and the Overman," a consideration of various aspects of the effort to make the master of the man, the servant of the people.
Mr. Zueblin's analysis of the national campaign of 1908 outlined the Progressive movement of today.

Mr. Zueblin has been identified with the American League for Civic Improvement (of which he was president in 1901-2); the School Extension Committee and the Vocational School Board, of Chicago; and the Vocational bureau of Boston. In addition to his therant lecturing, he edited the Twentieth Century Magazine, in Boston, during the year 1911-12.

It is hoped that advantage will be taken of this opportunity to hear what Prof. Zueblin has to say on this important topic of equal suffrage, and a cordial invitation is extended to the public.

REPAIRING PAVING.

Public Works to Put in a Patch Here and There.

The public works department began today patching up the asphalt paving at the corner of Vaughan and Congress streets.

The paving on Market square and Pleasant streets will also receive some attention but no elaborate job will be done at either location owing to the small amount of money which is allowed for the improvement.

PORTSMOUTH THEATRE PROGRAMME

MONDAY AND TUESDAY

"When the Men Left Town"—Edison comedy in two parts.

Two women get control of the town and stop smoking, drinking and gambling. The men revolt and leave. The women suddenly discover that the mere male is very handy when it comes to heavy work. A wild scene takes place when they finally return.
ACT—"Garham & Phillips"—Singing, Talking, Dancing.

"Sophie Pulls a Good One"—Edison comedy.

Sophie buys out a local dentist in Snakeville, pulls teeth for all the cowboys and leaves hurriedly on the stage with their money.

ACT—"The Vannersons"—Comedy Bar
Act.

"Blotted Out"—Edison Drama.

A good picture giving a story of Mexico. An ink bottle and ink plays the important part in this picture. Only for the ink in the bottle an immortal man would die.

"Heartst-Selig News Pictorial"— Giving you all the latest and interesting facts of the world at a glance, just as it happened. A fine film.

MONDAY AND TUESDAY—"The Mystery of the Hidden House." Vitagraph in 2 parts. This contains a story of two (?) beautiful girls, Margaret Gibson featured.

POLICE COURT.

A man for vagrancy was in the district court today. He promised to reform and the court discharged him.
